

RESUME GUIDE

PURPOSE

A resume is used to help market yourself as a good fit for a specific job or company. The goal is to help you get an interview by showcasing your experiences, skills, and accomplishments to an employer. A resume should be neat and organized and contain only relevant information that will make it easy for an employer to see why you might be a good candidate. The following tips and examples reflect the chronological resume style, which highlights most recent experiences first, then lists each additional experience in reverse chronological order within each section.

FORMATTING GUIDELINES

Formatting should be consistent and well organized throughout each experience on your resume so employers can more easily skim your resume for information. Additionally, your formatting should be consistent across all application documents including resume, cover letters, personal statements, etc. It is recommended you start from scratch in MS Word rather than use a template, because templates may not follow best practices and can be difficult to edit.

FONTS

Use a basic black font that is easy to read such as Times New Roman, Arial, and Calibri. Font size for the body portion of your resume can range from 10-12pt font. Your name and section headers may be formatted a few sizes larger.

BOLDING

Bolding text can help highlight information you want to stand out to the employer such as degree or job titles. Think about what is the most important information for an employer to know. Make sure your use of bold text is consistent throughout.

PAGE LENGTH

Resumes are traditionally no more than a page long and fill the entire page. Two pages may be used for resumes with substantial experience, though this is less common. If you plan on using two pages, be sure to fill the entire second page, avoid cutting an experience in half at the page break, and use page numbers.

MARGINS

The margins on a resume typically are set at .5 inch (narrow setting in Word) or 1 inch (standard setting in Word).

BULLET POINTS

Use bullet points to highlight key skills and accomplishments under each experience. A good bullet point will be no longer than one sentence and will start with an action verb. This verb should reflect the skill set you are trying to market to the employer. A list of action verbs is included for your reference at the end of this document.

Additionally, a bullet points should display your accomplishments not tasks. Quantify your experiences with numbers or other concrete measures whenever possible. The more detailed the bullet, the more information an employer is able to gather. You should aim to include 2-5 bullet points per experience. A formula for writing strong bullet points is listed below:

EXAMPLE

Weak Bullet Point

- Watched children

Strong Bullet Point

- Cared for<sup>1</sup> 2 children, ages 6 and 9<sup>2</sup>, and developed play activities designed to promote educational and social development, such as games, arts and crafts, and storytelling<sup>3</sup>

TAILORING YOUR RESUME

Each resume you create should be tailored specifically to the position you are applying to. Look closely at the position description and pull out key words, skills, and phrases you may want to use in your resume. Organize your experiences to reflect the skillsets needed for the particular job you are applying to. You can adjust your section titles, the length of each experience, and the content of your bullet points to tailor your resume to the position you are applying to.

As you begin to decide what to include on a resume, it may be helpful to create a master resume. A master resume is a comprehensive resume that includes all your past experiences, relevant or not, in great detail with disregard for page length limitations. You can then edit your master resume down in order to tailor it to a specific position.

WHAT NOT TO INCLUDE

Regardless of what you are applying to, there are a few things you should avoid including on your resume. There are, of course, exceptions to every rule, but in general you should avoid including the following:

- Objective Statements / Personal Summaries
It is no longer considered a best practice to start your resume with an objective statement or some kind of summary since these statements usually take up valuable space that could be used to describe your experiences.
- Colors and Graphics
While you may want to use color or graphics to show your personality and set you apart from other applicants, be aware that some employers may toss out a non-traditional looking resume in favor of something more standard. Let your experiences speak for themselves and avoid using colors or graphics.
- Old Experiences and High School Experiences (after sophomore year)
Unless an experience is extremely relevant to what you are applying to it is probably safe to leave these off. By the end of your sophomore year in college you should have started to replace these experiences with new ones.
- References (these go in a separate document, not on your resume)
Avoid making the employer do any extra work by having to request your references. Instead provide a list of 3-5 references in a separate document. A sample reference sheet is listed towards the end of this guide.

RESUMES VS. CURRICULUM VITAS (CV)

A CV is an academic, research focused resume traditionally used in academic, research, health care settings, and abroad. CVs are not restricted in length and may include a lengthy "Publications and Presentations" section in which out-of-classroom presentations and co-authored publications are listed. Otherwise, these styles are interchangeable.

PERSONAL INFORMATION

Your resume should start with a header including your name and contact information. Your name should be large and prominent at the top of your resume. This can be justified on left, center, or right as you prefer.

INCLUDES

- Contact Information: Full Name, Address (full address or just City, State), Phone Number, and Email Address
- Portfolio, LinkedIn, or other professional portfolio, optional

CALEB HAAS

Providence, RI | 401-555-8774 | caleb.haas@salve.edu
<https://linkedin.com/in/calebhaas>

EDUCATION

List your education starting with your most recent experience. You do not need to include your high school or, if you are a transfer student, your previous college(s), though you may. You may swap whether you list your degree title or the institution name first, depending on what you are applying to.

INCLUDES

- Degree title(s)
- Academic Honors (Dean's List, GPA if above 3.0, etc)

EXAMPLE

EDUCATION

Salve Regina University, Newport, RI
Bachelor of Arts in Administration of Justice, Minor in English Communications

Anticipated May 2022
Cumulative GPA: 3.67, Dean's List

EXPERIENCES

The titles for each of your sections can vary based on the skill sets and experiences you want to market to the employer. You may want to include a blanket “Experience” section on your resume which includes all of your experiences in reverse chronological order, or you may want to categorize your experiences by breaking them up into various sections. For example, you may want to highlight your more relevant experiences by breaking them up under two separate sections titled, “Relevant Experience” and “Additional Experience”. You can even be more specific with your section headers to reflect a particular skillset, for example, you could have a section titled “Non-Profit Experience”, “Federal Work Experience”, “Writing and Editing Experience”, etc.

INCLUDES

- Job/Experience Title
- Organization's name and location
- Bulleted description of skills and accomplishments starting with action verbs
- Dates of employment (usually aligned against the right margin)

LAW AND POLICY EXPERIENCE

- Grant Policy Advising Intern, Rhode Island Emergency Management, Cranston, RI June 2021 – Present

  - Audit local departments compliance with grant regulation and deliver an auditing report to grant funded departments to complete auditing process
  - Respond to grant policy questions submitted via email and maintain individual department files

RELEVANT COURSEWORK

If you are applying to a position within your academic field, you might consider including some of your relevant coursework. Introductory level courses may be left off and you should tailor your course list directly to the position you are applying to (ie. For a marine biology research position, you might leave off BIO 111, General Biology, but include BIO 260, Marine Biology). Coursework can be included in a variety of ways:

EXAMPLE 1 (AS PART OF EDUCATION, IF YOU WANT TO SHOW GENERAL BREADTH OF KNOWLEDGE)

EDUCATION

- Bachelor of Arts in Administration of Justice, Minor in English Communications Anticipated May 2022
Salve Regina University, Newport, RI Cumulative GPA: 3.67, Dean's List
- Relevant Coursework: Criminal Law, Criminal Procedure, Contemporary Trends and Issues in the Justice Process

Additionally, if you have publications, presentations, poster presentations, etc. you would like to include on your resume, you can list these out as citations. The example below is in APA format, but use whatever is common in your field.

INTERNATIONAL & STUDY ABROAD EXPERIENCE

Similarly to Relevant Coursework, Study Abroad Experiences can be included on your resume in a variety of ways, depending on how much you want to highlight this information for the employer.

EXAMPLE 1 (AS PART OF EDUCATION)

SKILLS, LANGUAGES, CERTIFICATIONS, ETC

You may want to include technical skills, language skills, training, or certification sections on your resume if your job will require you to call upon a specific skill set. For example, an Accounting major may want to list familiarity with commonly used software platforms such as Microsoft Excel or QuickBooks in a "Computer Skills" or "Software Applications" section. A skills section should not include soft skills such as, "able to work as part of a team" or "highly motivated"; these skills should be included as part of your cover letter or your bullet points. You can title these sections however you would like to tailor them to the position you are applying to.

SKILLS & CERTIFICATIONS

Computer: Microsoft Office Suite, Abacus Data Systems AbacusLaw, SPSS
Languages: English (fluent), Spanish (fluent), Arabic (moderate)
